The first Russo-Japanese Agreement

Done (in French) at St. Petersburg on July 30, 1907.

published in the Official Gazette on August 15 of the same year.

The Imperial Japanese Government and the Imperial Russian Government, desiring to strengthen the peaceful and friendly relations fortunately recovered between Japan and Russia and also to clear away all the causes of misunderstanding that may arise in their future relations, have agreed to the following articles:

Art.1: Each signatory power shall respect the present territorial integrity of the other. All the rights (except those that are not in contradiction with the principle of equal opportunity) accruing from the treaty signed at Port-Au-Port on September 5, 1905 or August 23 of the Russian calendar and the special treaties between Japan and Russia, shall be reciprocally respected.

Art.2: Both of the signatory powers shall recognize the independence and territorial integrity of the Chinese Empire as well as the principle of equal opportunity to every nation in commerce and industry therein, and shall protect and support the existence of the status quo and the establishment of the said principle by all peaceful measures available.

In witness whereof we affix our signature as the duly delegates of both governments.
